

K&K

22nd Apr 2002, 05:45 PM

i bought a saddle! yaaay! :D

the pic is below ... it's in very good condition and we only paid $375 canadian for it. the only thing about it is that it's very dirty and the leather isn't supple AT ALL, so it needs to be cleaned & oiled ... but that can be fixed with a bit of elbow grease :)

my question is - what can i use to get it clean & supple again? one person recommended saddle soap & some leather/harness conditioner, but i was wondering what your opinions were.

thanks! :D

K&K

22nd Apr 2002, 05:48 PM

oops - here's the pic.

4everSaddleSeat

22nd Apr 2002, 05:59 PM

I used to have the same problem as you. First I went to my local-about 30 minutes away-tack store and looked at their selection. They had just what I wanted. ~~Just what I needed. I was looking for a product that would clean and condition the leather and make it supple again. I found it. It was called Leather CPR. I had never heard about it until I went to the tack store and saw it. It was the best thing for the saddle. It literally brought it back to life. I love it! Here is the web site for it www.leathercpr.com. I hope that some of this has helped. The best thing for my saddle was elbow grease and cleaning it for about a week when I first got it. These are the best products I have found. Good Luck! :D~~

Just what I needed. I was looking for a product that would clean and condition the leather and make it supple again. I found it. It was called Leather CPR. I had never heard about it until I went to the tack store and saw it. It was the best thing for the saddle. It literally brought it back to life. I love it! Here is the web site for it www.leathercpr.com. I hope that some of this has helped. The best thing for my saddle was elbow grease and cleaning it for about a week when I first got it. These are the best products I have found. Good Luck! :D

vBulletin v3.0.6, Copyright ©2000-2005, Jelsoft Enterprises Ltd.